

7 international students from 5 countries exploring the hidden knowledge and histories behind our objects

If the ones you love were an object they would be... ?

WHAT

What object reminds you of home?

Is there an object that stays with you, wherever you go?

STEP 1 - RESEARCH

Do family objects shape our perception and our identity?

We share codes, histories, traditions, symbols, and practices. Objects are the vessels of this collective knowledge.

Objects are transmitted and passed along depending on the environments and individuals they come into contact with.

DO

Where are your childhood objects now?

WE

STEP 2 - INTERVIEWS & WORKSHOPS

A series of interviews were conducted, asking subjects about an object they have kept & why.

During the workshop period, activities will be completed to engage participants in a reflection on personal stories linked to objects:

- A) memory game
- B) treasure hunt
- C) people's archive
- D) storytelling

KEEP

What object will survive you? How?

Do you have any collecting obsession?

P?

What is the last object you gave to someone ?

STEP 3 - ARCHIVE

Illuminating and archiving the stories and knowledge we gathered from Step 2.

Creating a collection of stories in the form of a digital presentation.

What is the "ugliest" or "prettiest" object you have?

Is there a family object or story that you are ashamed of?
